METHODS USED IN OIL BATTLE UNDER SCRUTINY

"Strictly Cash" Transactions Of Seven Years' Ago Are Questioned

RFC DIRECTOR APPROVED

Banking Hearings Continue On Truman's Nomination Of Vardaman

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—The methods Edwin W. Pauley used in a fight between big and little oil interests in California seven years ago became an issue today in his bid for senate confirmation as undersecretary of Navy.

The senate naval affairs committee called Pauley back for questioning after hearing testimony that he financed one phase of the oil fight on a strictly cash basis, with no checks involved.

Hearings Continue

The senate banking committee, meanwhile, continued hearings on another controversial nomination by President Truman—his choice of Commodore James J. Vardaman, his naval aide, to be a member of the federal reserve board of governors.

Mr. Truman won out on a third nomination yesterday when the senate, by a 43 to 27 voice vote, confirmed George E. Allen as a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

John L. Ackerman, former Los Angeles public relations counselor, told the naval affairs committee of Pauley's financial activities in the California oil fight.

Sided With Interests

Although an independent producer himself, Pauley sided with the big interests in a campaign to defeat the referendum, which was No. 5 in the November, 1939 election. The independents won despite Ackerman's guess that more than $3,000,000 was spent against them.

Ackerman testified that Pauley paid out between $25,000 and $35,000 in cash—not checks—to publisher Sam Clark. Most of it, he said, was used to finance Clark's Hollywood Red Ink, a weekly newspaper which carried Pauley's side of the oil fight.

Republicans opposing Pauley's confirmation to the Navy post brought up the referendum fight in an effort to show that the former Democratic party treasurer engaged in questionable and possibly illegal transactions.

No Contributions Shown

Sens. Owen Brewster, R., Me., and Charles W. Tobey, R., N. H., made a point of the fact that financial statements of the committee fighting the referendum showed no contributions by Pauley or any of the big oil interests.

The financial statements listed Harold Judson, assistant solicitor general of the United States who was then a Los Angeles attorney, (Continued on Page Two)

Spies Seek Secrets Of Atom Bomb

Canadian Rings Activities Revealed To Have Spread Into United States

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—A highly placed source said today that certain foreign powers, using "unlimited funds," have made "very great efforts" to obtain atomic bomb secrets in this country.

He said a report on the subject had been filed with the senate atomic energy committee but declined to reveal the country or countries involved or the outcome of their espionage efforts.

Linked With Canadian Ring

In this connection, however, Rep. John E. Rankin, D., Miss., said there was evidence that the alleged Communist spy ring unearthed in Canada extended into the United States and possibly into some government departments.

Rankin, a member of the house un-American activities committee, said the Canadian disclosures gave the committee ample reason to make an official investigation of the American angles. He said he would bring the matter up at the committee's meeting today.

Sen. Brien McMahon, D., Conn., chairman of the senate's atomic committee, refuted reports that committee hearings had brought about leaks of vital bomb information. He said he had been reassured in this respect by a secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, chief of the Army's atomic bomb project.

Army Stands Firm

Army sources nevertheless stood firm on their claims that "multiple leaks" had resulted from testimony of scientists before the committee and from public utterances of atomic experts.

Groves is known to feel that the United States in recent months has lost more security on the bomb than during the wartime development period when it was a top secret. This view was shared by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, D., Colo., member of the committee. (Continued on Page Two)

BOY AUTO THIEF IS GIVEN TERM IN REFORMATORY

A 16-year-old motherless Circleville boy who admitted stealing three automobiles was sentenced to an undetermined term in the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield by Judge Sterling Lamb, Tuesday, in Pickaway County Juvenile Court.

The youth, an escapee from the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, where he had been committed for armed robbery a year ago, confessed that he stole a car belonging to the Ralston Purina Co., from a parking place in Circleville.

He said he drove to Lancaster where he abandoned the machine, then stole a truck, abandoning it when he ran out of gasoline at Gallipolis. The boy asserted that he then hitch-hiked to Chillicothe, where he stole another automobile, drove to Circleville, and abandoned the car.

Mainbocher Says Style Takes Brains, Not Money

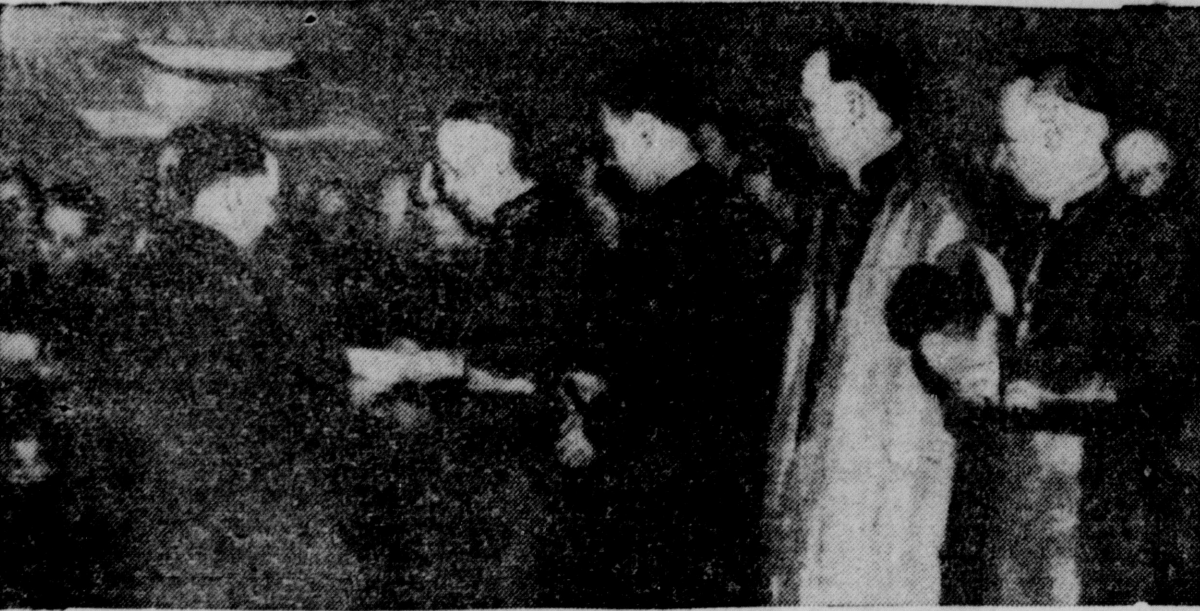

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—It's more difficult for an American woman to achieve smartness than for any other woman in the world, the noted dressmaker Mainbocher said today. The one with the most clothes, he said, may well be the dowdiest.

For smartness, said Mainbocher, is almost entirely a matter of selection, and American women have too much fashion to choose from. It's not easy—but don't give up, it's not impossible either.

4 SMALL BOYS ADMIT LOOTING PRIMARY SCHOOL

Four boys, ranging from 8 to 11 years old, have admitted taking minor loot from the Walnut street school building Saturday morning. They were questioned by Probate Judge Sterling Lamb.

Eleven boy employees, ranging from 12 to 17 years of age, shed no light on the $466.70 Roll and Bowl robbery Sunday, Police Chief W. F. McCrady said.

Who'll Get Ickes' Job?

Douglas Given Best Chance After White House Call On President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—President Truman kept the capital guessing today about his choice of a new secretary of interior but speculation was rapidly narrowing down to three candidates.

Informed sources gave top billing to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., as most likely successors to Harold L. Ickes. Oscar L. Chapman, acting interior secretary, was regarded a close third.

These sources said Mr. Truman had made no final decision up to late yesterday and conceded he might come up with an outsider.

Douglas' stock took a jump yesterday when he visited the White House and also conferred briefly with Ickes. Mr. Truman reportedly wants a western liberal for the job and Douglas, who is from Walla Walla, Wash., would fill the bill.

He was reported the favorite candidate of Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national committee chairman.

STRIKE TIES UP DAYTON'S TRUCK, TAXI SERVICES

DAYTON, O., Feb. 19—Dayton's cab service was cut in half and trucks, both local and long haul, were tied up by a strike of 350 drivers, warehousemen and dockmen today.

Sixty Dayton transportation firms were involved in the wage dispute with local 957 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and helpers (AFL).

The strike was called when the truck owners rejected a union demand for a 15-cent an hour increase.

A protest strike by 81 drivers for the Yellow Cab Company has been in effect since Saturday night. The strike began when a driver was discharged for failing to maintain a mileage average.

Word has been received here of the death of John Cassel Williams, 86, Circleville native and retired Southern Railway official who died at his home in Washington, D. C., February 9.

Mr. Williams was born in Circleville and was the son of Alfred Williams, then publisher of the Circleville Herald.

John Williams was graduated from Kenyon college at Gambier and began his newspaper work as a member of the staff of the Cleveland Herald in 1884. Later he was a reporter on the Cleveland Plain Dealer. He went to Washington, (Continued on Page Two)

BELGIUM SOUND, PROMISING, SAYS CHARLES SAWYER

CINCINNATI, Feb. 19—Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, former U. S. Ambassador to Belgium, said today that Belgium is "the most promising country in Europe."

Sawyer was asked to comment on the Belgium elections in which the Catholic party gained 19 seats. He said:

"I am too far away to endeavor to interpret the result of the election or to predict who will form the government.

"I am certain of one thing—that the common sense of the Belgian people will produce the right results. Belgium is today the most promising country in Europe and I am sure she will not throw away her chances."

Sen. Butler Says Red Tapes Keeps Ex-G. I.'s From Surplus Purchases

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—The surplus property administration said today that much of the government's existing $3,000,000,000 (B) investment in wartime radio and electrical equipment will have to be written off as junk.

SPA said in an interim report to congress that much of the equipment was designed for special military purposes and would have no peacetime use. Some can be sold after minor changes, however, and some can be sold immediately.

Five Plants "Surplus"

The report added that five of the 13 radio and electrical plants built by the government during the war at a cost of more than $5,000,000 each have been declared surplus and one already has been sold to its wartime operator.

In all the government spent about $19,000,000,000 (B) for radio and electrical equipment during the war, including about $10,700,000,000 (B) for radio, electronic and communications equipment and $8,300,000,000 (B) for electrical equipment.

The value of the plants declared surplus and the companies which operated them were General Electric Co., Fitchburg, Mass., $5,341,726; General Electric Co., Syracuse, N. Y., $12,268,404; National Carbon Co., Moorgantown, (Continued on Page Two)

HANK GREENBERG PLIGHTS TROTH WITH HEIRESS

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 19—Henry B. (Hank) Greenberg, baseball's highest-salaried player, and divorcee Carol Glazier Gimbel, brunette heiress to a department store fortune, have been married at Sea Island, Ga., the bride's father revealed today.

Bernard F. Gimbel, head of a New York department store, made the announcement at his home here and said the marriage had taken place while the two were enroute to the Detroit Tigers' Lakeland, Fla., spring training camp.

Greenberg, slugging first baseman of the world champion Tigers, who recently signed a contract calling for a reported $60,000 salary, left New York with his fiancée by automobile, stopping off at the Georgia Island town.

The former Miss Gimbel, well-known New York horsewoman, obtained a divorce Jan. 9 from Edward Lasker, former Navy Lieutenant Commander and son of Albert D. Lasker, ex-chairman of the U. S. shipping board.

New Home Delay Hit By Higgins

Ready To Build 500 Daily If U. S. Would Approve Deal, He Contends

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—Boat-builder Andrew J. Higgins, of New Orleans, said today that except for the government's war assets corporation, he could be building beautiful, low-cost houses, at a rate soon to reach 500 a day.

By tonight, he said, he will know whether war assets means business. He said for two months he has sought without success to buy the Higgins aircraft plant in New Orleans, which he wants to convert to the housing business. He operated the plant for the government during the war.

Higgins withheld details of his troubles with war assets officials. It was understood, however, his original proposition was considered too low by the government. More talks were scheduled for today.

Once he gets the plant, said Higgins, he is all set to build fire-proof, storm-proof, vermin-proof houses. A five-room job will sell for around $4,200.

Higgins' secret is a formula known to only three persons. He hasn't even bothered to get a patent. He mixes a quart of it in enough concrete for a house and the result, he says, is thermo-con, strong, so light it floats, and better insulation than cork.

Six months after he gets his plant, Higgins believes he can be operating at his maximum rate of production—500 homes a day. In addition he may license other manufacturers to use his process.

NO TRACE FOUND OF FRANK WARD IN HOME ASHES

No trace of the body of Frank Ward, 74, eccentric Tarleton recluse, had been found when searching in the ruins of his fire-destroyed brick farm home was halted by rain at 11 a. m. Tuesday.

The hallway and one room of the basement have been combed, but nothing has turned up except a few remnants of Ward's valuable antiques.

The search can be completed in two more days, Deputy Sheriff Lester E. Wolford, who is directing the search said.

WOMAN ADMITS FIRE DEATH OF BABY DAUGHTER

CLEVELAND, Feb. 19—Mary Grassi, 21, today pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the burning to death of her newly born daughter last July.

She previously had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to an indictment that charged second degree murder.

The maximum sentence is one to 20 years in prison. She was freed on $5,000 bond.

The girl has never identified the father of the child except to say he is a soldier overseas.

SOLID BALLOT FOR WALKOUT IS INDICATED

250,000 Workers Ready To Quit Unless Demands Are Met At Once

PHILLY LEADER IMPATIENT

Action Would Paralyze Long Distance, Disrupt Most Local Communications

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 19—A strike vote of 50 affiliated unions of the National Federation of Telephone Workers was expected here today with a solid ballot for a work-stoppage an almost certainty.

NFTW President Joseph A. Beirne last night left little doubt of the vote result with an announcement that a union-by-union survey of the groups already showed that the larger and more powerful members definitely favored a walkout.

May Act At Once

Meanwhile, John J. Moran, president of the federation of long line operators, 1000 of whose members left their jobs yesterday in Philadelphia, warned that his union might not await for an NFTW strike order before taking nationwide action in support of the Philadelphia workers.

Moran said his union would take independent strike action and not wait for any walkout that might be ordered by the NFTW meeting here, if the union and the American Telephone and Telegraph company don't settle their dispute within 24 hours.

He said the walkout took place when a non-union employee was promoted over 20 union workers with "proper qualifications" and superior seniority.

Violation Charged

Moran charged this was a violation of the union's contract, which expired Dec. 31.

Beirne said that the informal survey of heads of 50 unions, here, representing 250,000 telephone workers, revealed that "the larger unions definitely tended in the direction of strike action." He was careful however to point out that the survey did not constitute a formal vote. He said the affiliates were asked to give a "concise expression of opinion on the strike issue."

Member union heads were to meet again at 9:30 a. m. today, and Beirne announced that a vote on the strike issue "probably would be taken."

The executive committee of the organization held a long, closed session last night. No statements were issued following the meeting.

Union Strength Boosted

Total strength of the federation was boosted to 50 member unions last night with the formal acceptance. (Continued on Page Two)

BOY, 15, ADMITS MOLESTING FOUR GIRLS RECENTLY

Seizure of four girls on Circleville streets was admitted by a 15-year-old Circleville boy, Tuesday, it was disclosed by Juvenile Court Judge Sterling Lamb.

The boy was ordered sent to the Bureau of Juvenile Research at Columbus for observation and examination.

The grabbing of the girls, aged 16 and 17, occurred during the past several nights. One was molested at Water and Court streets, two others on Franklin street, and the fourth Sunday night near the bus station.

Capture of the boy resulted from recognition of him by the fourth girl who immediately reported the incident to Circleville police.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—The methods Edwin W. Pauley used in a fight between big and little oil interests in California seven years ago became an issue today in his bid for senate confirmation as undersecretary of Navy.

John L. Ackerman, former Los Angeles public relations counselor, told the naval affairs committee of Pauley's financial activities in the California oil fight.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—The surplus property administration said today that much of the government's existing $3,000,000,000 (B) investment in wartime radio and electrical equipment will have to be written off as junk.

Anyway, that's the expert opinion of mademoiselle Evelyn Riva, pretty specialist at the Montmartre's famous Bal Tabarin Cabaret.

"It was wonderful performing for GIs and Tommies," sighed the lovely Evelyn.

She shivered reminiscently in the folds of her dressing gown and glared at a half-dozen rival nudes getting ready to go onstage.

"Those soldiers. . . they made you feel like you had something. You can understand how important that is to us. French audiences are too dignified, too unresponsive. They think clapping the hands is enough applause."

New Home Delay Hit By Higgins

Ready To Build 500 Daily If U. S. Would Approve Deal, He Contends

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—Boat-builder Andrew J. Higgins, of New Orleans, said today that except for the government's war assets corporation, he could be building beautiful, low-cost houses, at a rate soon to reach 500 a day.

By tonight, he said, he will know whether war assets means business. He said for two months he has sought without success to buy the Higgins aircraft plant in New Orleans, which he wants to convert to the housing business. He operated the plant for the government during the war.

Higgins withheld details of his troubles with war assets officials. It was understood, however, his original proposition was considered too low by the government. More talks were scheduled for today.

Once he gets the plant, said Higgins, he is all set to build fire-proof, storm-proof, vermin-proof houses. A five-room job will sell for around $4,200.

Higgins' secret is a formula known to only three persons. He hasn't even bothered to get a patent. He mixes a quart of it in enough concrete for a house and the result, he says, is thermo-con, strong, so light it floats, and better insulation than cork.

Six months after he gets his plant, Higgins believes he can be operating at his maximum rate of production—500 homes a day. In addition he may license other manufacturers to use his process.

NO TRACE FOUND OF FRANK WARD IN HOME ASHES

No trace of the body of Frank Ward, 74, eccentric Tarleton recluse, had been found when searching in the ruins of his fire-destroyed brick farm home was halted by rain at 11 a. m. Tuesday.

The hallway and one room of the basement have been combed, but nothing has turned up except a few remnants of Ward's valuable antiques.

The search can be completed in two more days, Deputy Sheriff Lester E. Wolford, who is directing the search said.

WOMAN ADMITS FIRE DEATH OF BABY DAUGHTER

CLEVELAND, Feb. 19—Mary Grassi, 21, today pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the burning to death of her newly born daughter last July.

She previously had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to an indictment that charged second degree murder.

The maximum sentence is one to 20 years in prison. She was freed on $5,000 bond.

The girl has never identified the father of the child except to say he is a soldier overseas.

250,000 Workers Ready To Quit Unless Demands Are Met At Once

PHILLY LEADER IMPATIENT

Action Would Paralyze Long Distance, Disrupt Most Local Communications

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 19—A strike vote of 50 affiliated unions of the National Federation of Telephone Workers was expected here today with a solid ballot for a work-stoppage an almost certainty.

NFTW President Joseph A. Beirne last night left little doubt of the vote result with an announcement that a union-by-union survey of the groups already showed that the larger and more powerful members definitely favored a walkout.

May Act At Once

Meanwhile, John J. Moran, president of the federation of long line operators, 1000 of whose members left their jobs yesterday in Philadelphia, warned that his union might not await for an NFTW strike order before taking nationwide action in support of the Philadelphia workers.

Moran said his union would take independent strike action and not wait for any walkout that might be ordered by the NFTW meeting here, if the union and the American Telephone and Telegraph company don't settle their dispute within 24 hours.

He said the walkout took place when a non-union employee was promoted over 20 union workers with "proper qualifications" and superior seniority.

Violation Charged

Moran charged this was a violation of the union's contract, which expired Dec. 31.

Beirne said that the informal survey of heads of 50 unions, here, representing 250,000 telephone workers, revealed that "the larger unions definitely tended in the direction of strike action." He was careful however to point out that the survey did not constitute a formal vote. He said the affiliates were asked to give a "concise expression of opinion on the strike issue."

Member union heads were to meet again at 9:30 a. m. today, and Beirne announced that a vote on the strike issue "probably would be taken."

The executive committee of the organization held a long, closed session last night. No statements were issued following the meeting.

Union Strength Boosted

Total strength of the federation was boosted to 50 member unions last night with the formal acceptance. (Continued on Page Two)

BOY, 15, ADMITS MOLESTING FOUR GIRLS RECENTLY

Seizure of four girls on Circleville streets was admitted by a 15-year-old Circleville boy, Tuesday, it was disclosed by Juvenile Court Judge Sterling Lamb.

The boy was ordered sent to the Bureau of Juvenile Research at Columbus for observation and examination.

The grabbing of the girls, aged 16 and 17, occurred during the past several nights. One was molested at Water and Court streets, two others on Franklin street, and the fourth Sunday night near the bus station.

Capture of the boy resulted from recognition of him by the fourth girl who immediately reported the incident to Circleville police.

COLUMBUS FACES THREAT OF TROLLEY, BUS STRIKE

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19—Columbus today faced a possible street car and bus strike on March 1.

Members of the transport workers union (CIO) authorized union officials to call a strike if grievances that involve working schedules of drivers are not ironed out by the end of the month.

SOLID BALLOT FOR WALKOUT IS INDICATED

250,000 Workers Ready To Quit Unless Demands Are Met At Once

ance of 6068 members of the Traffic Telephone Workers' Federation of New Jersey.

The Memphis meeting followed a similar December gathering in Milwaukee at which time the NTFW set up a national policy demanding a $10 a week raise, a 65 cent an hour minimum, and a return to the 40-hour work week.

A telephone strike called last Jan. 18 was delayed 30 days to permit local unions to file strike notices.

President Truman's recent executive order allowing some relaxation of price controls to allow limited wage increases in hopes that it might provide a solution to company-union disagreements was being studied by the NTFW board.

Effect Not Clear

It was not clear to the executive board what effect the order would have on telephone company rates, which are fixed by the federal communications and state commissions. A spokesman said a second order from the President might be necessary to clarify the issue.

Possibility of a NTFW tie-in with the American Federation of Labor or congress of industrial organizations was also among topics to be considered in the Memphis meeting.

A meeting with representatives from the two labor organizations is scheduled for Wednesday night. However, it was believed that a decision on the proposal would not be made until the NTFW convention in June. The telephone workers rejected a similar proposal in 1942.

Other Developments

Other major labor developments: Nearly 400,000 of the 750,000 steel workers who struck Jan. 21 settled for 18 1/2 cent hourly pay increases in line with President Truman's wage-price policy.

At Lancaster, Pa., CIO unions voted to support the AFL in a citywide strike to protest delays in settling a walkout of bus and street car operators.

General Motors and the CIO United Auto Workers were to meet again today, and Federal Mediator James F. Dewey said "There is still a great deal of negotiating to be done" in the strike of 175,000 workers.

Increase Recommended

A government fact-finding board at Washington recommended wage increases of 18 cents an hour for 30,000 CIO farm equipment workers striking against the International Harvester Co.

Westinghouse Electrical Corp. said it had made contract proposals to representatives of 60,000 striking CIO electrical workers but emphasized that the proposals did not constitute a "definite wage offer."

Representatives of the Duquesne Light Co., Pittsburgh, and an independent union were to meet again today in an effort to settle the wage dispute which caused a power shutdown last week.

PLUMBER CHILLS ITURBI'S WATER; PIANIST IS HOT

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 19—Concert pianist Jose Iturbi today charged plumber George W. Kirman, who took out his hot water heater and never returned it, with causing him $3,000 worth of discomfort.

Iturbi's damage suit said he had been shaving and bathing in cold water ever since the plumber took the water heater for repairs a year ago.

PAY INCREASES APPROVED AT ZANESVILLE COMPANY

ZANESVILLE, Feb. 19—Union and plant officials announced today that wage increases had been approved for employees at the American Rolling Mill Co., at Zanesville.

In a joint announcement, Ross Little, plant superintendent, and E. R. Thomas, president of the independent union, said increases of 18 1/2 cents an hour were approved for production employees. Salaried workers were granted a blanket $32-per-month raise, they added.

All increases are retroactive to Jan. 1.

AUTOS COLLIDE

An auto driven by Mrs. Lela M. Schooley, housewife of Columbus, and another car driven by Maynard E. Speakman, 17, student of Route 1 New Holland, were in collision on North Court street at 7:50 p. m. Monday, police report. The Schooley car was slightly damaged.

CABBIE VETS HEAD FOR CAPITAL TO ENLIST AID

MORE THAN 700 WAR VETERANS, riding in 300 taxicabs and private automobiles, are shown as they left Chicago's Soldier's Field for Washington, D. C., where they will seek aid from federal officials in their campaign for taxicab drivers' licenses. A recent Chicago court injunction enjoined a veterans' association from operating in the city, and members of the group have been refused licenses. Contending they are entitled to relief under the GI Bill of Rights, the cabbies will ask President Truman to intervene in their behalf.

Another congressional source, who declined use of his name, attributed the leaks to "bad political judgment" on the part of some of the "younger scientists" who worked on the war time atomic program.

Exchanges Criticized

The source said that much of the information has come out through exchanges of thoughts and theories in meetings of scientific associations by scientists now freed of the strict war time secrecy bans.

These views were expressed while the Canadian government pushed its investigations of the alleged Communist espionage ring.

Despite some denials, the belief persisted at Ottawa that bomb secrets of the United States, Britain and Canada came within the scope of the ring's operations.

DRAFT AUDIT SUPERVISOR KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19—John R. Thompson, 56-year-old Akron native who was audit supervisor at state draft headquarters, was killed early today when his auto struck a bridge abutment near Beverly in Washington county.

State highway patrolmen said Thompson was found pinned beneath the steering wheel. They said he is believed to have suffered a heart attack.

Meanwhile, Sen. Hugh D. Butler, R., Neb., charged that government red tape had prevented veterans from taking advantage of their right to purchase surplus property.

He wrote a letter to representatives of the veterans' policy committee of the war assets corp. urging an immediate study of the possibility of doing away with the requirement that veterans must obtain a priority certificate.

Although the surplus property act has been compiled with "technicality," he said, "it seems to me in actual practice most veterans have been prevented from cashing in on their rights by the red tape that surrounded the priority sales of these goods."

J. C. WILLIAMS DIES IN CAPITAL

D. C., in 1887 as a reporter on the Washington Post. He also worked as the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun and the New York Herald.

Conference Secretary

In 1901 and 1902 he served as secretary of the United States delegation to the second Pan-American conference at Mexico City. From 1902 to 1905 he was Washington correspondent for the New York Journal of Commerce.

During his boyhood in Circleville he was familiarly known as "Squire" and lived with his parents on East Union street on the site of the present home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Curtin.

During the Civil War, his father served several terms as mayor of Circleville and was later a law partner of the widely known, Henry F. Page, whose home was what is now the American Legion home, on East Main street.

John Williams was a member of St. Philip's Episcopal church and sang in the church choir.

Senior Church Warden

At the time of his death he was senior warden emeritus of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Washington, D. C., and was a member of the Board of Governors of the old Press Club and a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Mary Abercrombie Saxton, who was a niece of Mrs. William McKinley; a daughter, Miss Louise Cassel Williams, assistant librarian at the Mellon Art Gallery in Washington, D. C.; a sister, Mrs. Clara W. Bragdon, Grand View, Washington; (Mrs. Bragdon's husband was, at the time of their marriage, pastor of St. Philip's church here).

Private burial services were held in Washington for Mr. Williams. No immediate relatives of Mr. Williams remain in Circleville. Mrs. William C. Bisell and Mrs. Helen Gunning are friends of the family.

SOLID BALLOT FOR WALKOUT IS INDICATED

250,000 Workers Ready To Quit Unless Demands Are Met At Once

ance of 6068 members of the Traffic Telephone Workers' Federation of New Jersey.

The Memphis meeting followed a similar December gathering in Milwaukee at which time the NFW set up a national policy demanding a $10 a week raise, a 65 cent an hour minimum, and a return to the 40-hour work week.

A telephone strike called last Jan. 18 was delayed 30 days to permit local unions to file strike notices.

President Truman's recent executive order allowing some relaxation of price controls to allow limited wage increases in hopes that it might provide a solution to company-union disagreements was being studied by the NFW board.

Effect Not Clear

It was not clear to the executive board what effect the order would have on telephone company rates, which are fixed by the federal communications and state commissioners. A spokesman said a second order from the President might be necessary to clarify the issue.

Possibility of a NFW tie-in with the American Federation of Labor or congress of industrial organizations was also among topics to be considered in the Memphis meeting.

A meeting with representatives from the two labor organizations is scheduled for Wednesday night. However, it was believed that a decision on the proposal would not be made until the NFW convention in June. The telephone workers rejected a similar proposal in 1942.

Other Developments

Other major labor developments:

Nearly 400,000 of the 750,000 steel workers who struck Jan. 21 settled for 18 1/2 cent hourly pay increases in line with President Truman's wage-price policy.

At Lancaster, Pa., CIO unions voted to support the AFL in a citywide strike to protest delays in settling a walkout of bus and street car operators.

General Motors and the CIO United Auto Workers were to meet again today, and Federal Mediator James F. Dwey said "There is still a great deal of negotiating to be done" in the strike of 175,000 workers.

Increase Recommended

A government fact-finding board at Washington recommended wage increases of 18 cents an hour for 30,000 CIO farm equipment workers striking against the International Harvester Co.

Westinghouse Electrical Corp. said it had made contract proposals to representatives of 60,000 striking CIO electrical workers but emphasized that the proposals did not constitute a "definite wage offer."

Representatives of the Duquesne Light Co., Pittsburgh, and an independent union were to meet again today in an effort to settle the wage dispute which caused a power shutdown last week.

Salaried workers were granted a blanket $32-per-month raise, they added.

All increases are retroactive to Jan. 1.

Exchanges Criticized

The source said that much of the information has come out through exchanges of thoughts and theories in meetings of scientific associations by scientists now freed of the strict war time secrecy bans.

These views were expressed while the Canadian government pushed its investigations of the alleged Communist espionage ring. Despite some denials, the belief persisted at Ottawa that bomb secrets of the United States, Britain and Canada came within the scope of the ring's operations.

DRAFT AUDIT SUPERVISOR KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19—John R. Thompson, 56-year-old Akron native who was audit supervisor at state draft headquarters, was killed early today when his auto struck a bridge abutment near Beverly in Washington county.

State highway patrolmen said Thompson was found pinned beneath the steering wheel. They said he is believed to have suffered a heart attack.

FERGUSON DISTRIBUTES $1,414,800 IN GAS TAX

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today announced the distribution of $1,414,800 to townships and counties out of state gasoline tax revenues.

Each of the 1,357 townships will receive $400, while each of the 88 counties will get $10,000, Ferguson said.

TAXIDERMIST DISPLAYED

John Magill, manager of the Western Auto Associate store on West Main street, has three fine specimens of taxidermy in his store window. The animals, a beautiful red fox, a red tail chicken hawk and a pheasant were prepared by George Patrick, taxidermist and champion fox-hunter of Route 3.

N. C., $6,743,617; General Motors Corp., Kings Mills, O., $5,219,000, and General Electric Co., Erie, Pa., $6,980,000. The latter plant was sold.

Sen. Butler Objects

Meanwhile, Sen. Hugh D. Butler, R., Neb., charged that government red tape had prevented veterans from taking advantage of their right to purchase surplus property.

He wrote a letter to representatives to the veterans' policy committee of the war assets corp., urging an immediate study of the possibility of doing away with the requirement that veterans must obtain a priority certificate.

Although the surplus property act has been compiled with "technicality," he said, "it seems to me in actual practice most veterans have been prevented from cashing in on their rights by the red tape that surrounded the priority sales of these goods."

NEW CITIZENS

MASTER DRUM

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Drum, Stoutsville, in Berger hospital Tuesday morning.

CONFERENCE SECRETARY

In 1901 and 1902 he served as secretary of the United States delegation to the second Pan-American conference at Mexico City.

From 1902 to 1906 he was Washington correspondent for the New York Journal of Commerce.

During his boyhood in Circleville he was familiarly known as "Squire" and lived with his parents on East Union street on the site of the present home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Curtin.

During the Civil War, his father served several terms as mayor of Circleville and was later a law partner of the widely known, Henry F. Page, whose home was what is now the American Legion home, on East Main street.

John Williams was a member of St. Philip's Episcopal church and sang in the church choir.

Senior Church Warden

At the time of his death he was senior warden emeritus of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Washington, D. C., and was a member of the Board of Governors of the old Press Club and a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Mary Abercrombie Saxton, who was a niece of Mrs. William McKinley; a daughter, Miss Louise Cassel Williams, assistant librarian at the Mellon Art Gallery in Washington, D. C.; a sister, Mrs. Clara W. Bragdon, Grand View, Washington. (Mrs. Bragdon's husband was, at the time of their marriage, pastor of St. Philip's church here.)

Private burial services were held in Washington for Mr. Williams. No immediate relatives of Mr. Williams remain in Circleville. Mrs. William C. Bissell and Mrs. Helen Gunning are friends of the family.

"DUEL" BRINGS FRACTURE

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Eight-year-old James Kelly was in the hospital today with broken ribs, because of a sword fight. Four boys were dueling with wooden swords on the roof of a police station. James was fought back to the roof's edge. He accidentally stepped off and fell 35 feet to the street.

MISTAKE PROVES FATAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Solomon Cohen, 44, was dead today because he did not read the label when he reached for a bottle of mouthwash. What he thought was antiseptic turned out to be chloroform liniment.

LAKE BID IS $3,000

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19—State Conservation Commissioner H. A. (Buck) Rider today announced that J. J. Vintine, Columbus, submitted a low bid of $3,000 to build the proposed state lake on Deer Creek in Madison county.

FLOOD PROJECT REJECTED

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19—Brig. Gen. B. C. Dunn, chief engineer in the Ohio River Division, announced today that the proposed flood control project on Clear Fork of the Mohican River in Richland county had been disapproved.

PRICE POWERS URGED FOR OPA

the price control extension bill now before the committee.

The amendment would require OPA to accept the recommendations of its industry advisory committees for ending price controls when production reaches specific levels.

If OPA did not believe controls should be lifted at that time, it could appeal to an emergency board of appeals. The board then would determine if production was sufficient to justify the action. Its findings would be final.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

TROOP 2
February 12, Troop 2 met at headquarters. At the first of the meeting we practiced songs for the Thinking Day Program. Ann Curtin informed us that we would visit the Post Office, Saturday morning, February 16, at 9:45. We then filled our Friendship Bags to go to Holland. Before the next meeting each girl is to learn the songs for Thinking Day, to get the remaining articles for the Friendship Bags and listen to "Captain January," Monday night at 9:00 o'clock on CBS.

The meeting closed with the goodnight song and friendship circle.

Meeting of Monday, February 11
Most of this meeting was devoted to current business. Inventory was taken of all articles which had been brought to date for the completion of the Friendship Bags which we are now working on. Each girl is filling one bag and is to bring the remaining articles next meeting.

Miss Stout is to take a picture of the troop Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. All girls are to be in full uniform.

We then reviewed the history of Girl Scouting and discussed the Vesper Service which is to be held Friday, February 22, at 4:00 p. m. in Girl Scout headquarters.

Miss Stout discussed the possibility of the troop taking swimming lessons at the Y. M. C. A. in Columbus within the near future.

The latter part of the meeting was spent in practicing the songs which will be sung at the Vesper Service next week.

Meeting was brought to a close

with the singing of taps.

STEEL STRIKERS REMAIN OUT AT 2 OHIO PLANTS

FREMONT, O., Feb. 19 — The Fremont Foundry Company remained closed today despite settlement of the steel strike in many cities.

More than 160 CIO steel workers here continued to maintain picket lines around the plant, while William Ross, C. I. O. official, said several matters were to be cleared up before work could be resumed.

Ross said the company had not signed a retroactive pay increase approved by the National Labor Relations Board and by the Union. The foundry was the only local plant affected by the steel plant.

The Clyde Porcelain Steel Co. at nearby Clyde remained partially closed because of material shortage.

The meeting was brought to a close with the forming of the Friendship Circle and the singing of taps.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

TROOP 2

February 12, Troop 2 met at headquarters. At the first of the meeting we practiced songs for the Thinking Day Program. Ann

Curtain informed us that we would visit the Post Office, Saturday morning, February 16, at 9:45. We then filled our Friendship Bags to go to Holland. Before the next meeting each girl is to learn the songs for Thinking Day, to get the remaining articles for the Friendship Bags and listen to "Captain January." Monday night at 9:00 o'clock on CBS.

The meeting closed with the goodnight song and friendship circle.

Scribe, Norma Howard.

Ruth Stout, Leader

Minutes
Meeting of Monday, February 11
Most of this meeting was devoted to current business. Inventory was taken of all articles which had been brought to date for the completion of the Friendship Bags which we are now working on. Each girl is filling one bag and is to bring the remaining articles next meeting.

Miss Stout is to take a picture of the troop Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. All girls are to be in full uniform.

We then reviewed the history of Girl Scouting and discussed the Vesper Service which is to be held Friday, February 22, at 4:00 p. m. in Girl Scout headquarters.

Miss Stout discussed the possibility of the troop taking swimming lessons at the Y. M. C. A. in Columbus within the near future.

The latter part of the meeting was spent in practicing the songs which will be sung at the Vesper Service next week.

Meeting was brought to a close

with the singing of taps.

STEEL STRIKERS REMAIN OUT AT 2 OHIO PLANTS

FREMONT, O., Feb. 19 — The Fremont Foundry Company remained closed today despite settlement of the steel strike in many cities.

More than 160 CIO steel workers here continued to maintain picket lines around the plant, while William Ross, C. I. O. official, said several matters were to be cleared up before work could be resumed.

Ross said the company had not signed a retroactive pay increase approved by the National Labor Relations Board and by the Union. The foundry was the only local plant affected by the steel plant.

The Clyde Porcelain Steel Co. at nearby Clyde remained partially closed because of material shortage.

The meeting was brought to a close with the forming of the Friendship Circle and the singing of taps.

VET FALLS HEIR TO MILLION BUT STICKS TO LAW

Notre Dame Student Will Continue Studies Despite His Good Fortune

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 19.—A former army lieutenant, attending Notre Dame University under the G. I. Bill of Rights, went to his law classes as usual today and said he didn't intend to let his millions interfere with his studies. "My education is going to come first with me. Jack E. Love, 22, said when asked about reports he was the sole heir to the oil and lumber fortune of a great uncle, Claude Logan, who died last month at Olympia, Wash.

Just A Sophomore Love, a Notre Dame sophomore, said he'd heard about the inheritance two weeks ago "but didn't see any use in telling anyone about it until I learned some more details.

"I got a letter from a New York law firm informing me that my great uncle had left me his entire estate of $1,000,000 (M) or maybe $1,500,000 (M)."

He said he thought someone was kidding him at first but then he contacted his father, Jack C. Love, a Hagerstown, Md., attorney, who confirmed the information.

Love said he had seen his uncle several times and used to go on hunting trips with him when he was a boy. But, he said, his uncle never had indicated in any way that he was leaving his fortune to his "favorite nephew."

Never Asked Anything "Uncle Claude told me that if I ever needed any money to help me through school to call on him," Love recalled, "but I never asked him for a penny."

Love said he was making his way through college on the $132 a month he received from the government under the G. I. Bill of Rights for his education and a service disability incurred in Sicily. He said he accepted a "little" financial help from his family but did not have time to take a part-time job because of his heavy scholastic schedule.

"But now, with this money, maybe I'll be able to go out for the football team," the quiet, 210-pound student told reporters excitedly. "I've got two more years of school ahead of me."

Has Indian Blood Love said his uncle, a bachelor, was descended from a full-blooded Indian, "so I guess his rise to wealth started with the oil in Oklahoma."

"Uncle Claude ran away from home when he was young," Love said. "In some manner he got started in the lumber business in Canada and later he went to South America, where he became interested in the Bauxite mines."

Love said his uncle lost a leg in South America, "but he never would tell us what happened to him."

The young millionaire said he would go home at the end of the current semester and "look into this estate business," then come back and get his law degree.

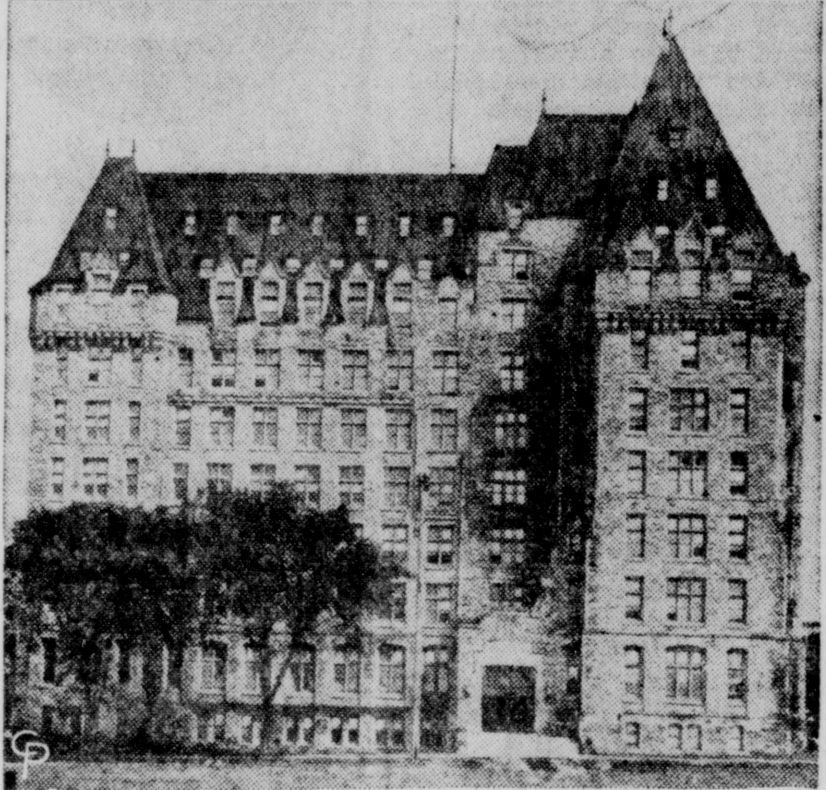

He laughed suddenly and explained to reporters: "Maybe my ex-girl friend will be sorry she broke her engagement with me last Christmas."

BOUDITCH SAILS TO PARTICIPATE IN ATOM TESTS

Navy's Aquatic Eavesdropper Will Record Results Of Bomb Explosion

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—As unperturbed as if she were once more hauling pleasure cruisers to South America, the U. S. S. Bouditch was on her way to Bikini atoll in the Marshall Islands today to find out the effect of an atomic bomb on the ocean's floor.

The Bouditch was the first ship to sail for the site of the Navy's scheduled atomic bomb test against a guinea pig task force next May.

The one-time Grace lines combination cargo and passenger ship was loaded to the gunwales with strange equipment to probe, scrape, peer, photograph and listen: to ocean floor conditions before and after the atomic bomb hits.

Laden With Equipment Strawn along her 400-foot decks were arm sounding leads, fathometers, wire drags, electronic listening devices, samplers and special cameras. And lashed above the entire pile were two big launchers, both equipped to carry on experiments out of touch with the mother ship for as long as two weeks at a time.

The business of finding out what goes on at the bottom of the sea is nothing new for the 8,000-ton Bouditch. Throughout the Pacific campaigns, she steamed up to reefs and atolls to make the surveys and soundings of anchorages which told fleet commanders whether their big ships could go in.

The Bouditch, and other sounding ships like her, set out their launchers and sounding devices while landing craft still were unloading inside the coral reefs. Aboard the Bouditch for her historic aquatic eavesdropping was Prof. Kenneth C. Emery, wartime head of the oceanographic section of the Navy radio and sound laboratories.

Prof. Emery, a geology professor at the University of Southern California and former Scripps Institute of Oceanography researcher, was appointed by the U. S. geological survey to make the ocean-floor testings and photographs.

Many New Devices The special equipment to be used in the tests included many devices which Prof. Emery developed himself during the war. Some of them are still under military "wraps," because charting and oceanographic survey play so important a part in strategy conferences.

POLICE SEARCH SEWERS, DRAINS FOR LOST CHILD

Parents Hope Against Hope That Missing Child Is In Loving Hands

WOMAN OFFERS NEW CLUE

Store Owner Says Complete Wardrobe Was Bought; Dress Check Tallies

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19—Police searched sewers and storm drains leading to the ocean today for the body of little Rochelle Gluskoter, while her parents clung to the hope she had been carried away by someone who wanted a child to love.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Gluskoter said their daughter, missing since last Friday, was exceptionally friendly with strangers and won their friendship in return.

Friendly With Strangers
"I'm not surprised that she would readily get into a stranger's car," Mrs. Merian Gluskoter said. "She made up easily to strangers and we had to warn her against it."

The distraught mother said she was holding to the hope that the man who enticed six-year-old Rochelle into his car was not a murderous sex degenerate, but rather was acting for some one who wanted a child like Rochelle.

Her hopes were bolstered by the story of a Long Beach, Calif., store owner that two women late Saturday bought an entire new wardrobe for a child she and two clerks were certain was Rochelle.

"I'd bet a thousand dollars it was the same girl," said Mrs. Arthur Holzman, the owner. "The child seemed unhappy and didn't smile the entire time she was in the store."

She said the clothes the child was wearing tallied with those worn by Rochelle when she disappeared.

Child's Death Feared

Sheriff's deputies, however, feared that the child's kidnaper might have killed the child and tossed her body into a storm drain or sewer opening of the Los Angeles river. A small army of deputies and Boy Scouts was thrown into the hunt along flat, unfrequented sections of the river bed.

Police continued to question Alonzo Flores, department store tailor, and Albert Arthur Weeks, 28, although neighbors and playmates were unable to identify either of the men as the driver of a tan-topped convertible coupe into which Rochelle disappeared.

Two other women, however, identified Flores as the man they saw trying to make a little girl perform an immoral act in an automobile a few hours after Rochelle was taken away. They said his victim looked like Rochelle.

SEVERSKY URGES CONTROL OF AIR

Expert Says Planes Offer Best Preparation For Atomic War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—This country was warned today that its safety in an atomic age rests in air fleets capable of controlling the skies of the world and even electronic space beyond.

Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, noted aviation expert and author, painted an awesome picture of a possible future war in which supersonic weapons — guided weapons hurtling faster than the speed of sound—would be countered by supersonic defenses.

Given time, he said, military science undoubtedly will find some defense against the atom bomb. That will make delivery of the bomb the number one tactical problem.

"Therefore the main battle of the future will be primarily for command of the air and electronic space," he said.

When that day comes, he said, island bases will be useless because attacks will be hurled from "the economic heart of one power to the economic heart of another."

De Seversky's warning was included in a report to Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson which sharply criticized American military leaders for failing to take full advantage of air power.

Because of this failure, he said, only the advent of the atomic bomb made it possible for the United States to call off its plan for an invasion of the Japanese homeland which would have cost half a million American lives.

Cottage site leases, now available through the Muskingum conservancy district, New Philadelphia, include the privilege of building private boat docks on the chain of lakes now being developed for sportsmen and vacationists in eastern Ohio.

ONE-TIME INDIANA FARM BOY OPERATES GIANT NEW WAR ASSETS CORPORATION

SURPLUS STUFF—These are some of the Army scout cars which have been declared surplus and for sale.

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — A former Hoosier country kid whose father started out as a tenant farmer now has the multi-billion dollar task of disposing of Uncle Sam's surplus war property.

Arthur J. Fushman, Detroit chief for the Reconstruction Finance corporation on leave at Washington headquarters, is now director of the newly-created War Assets corporation.

Before that, Fushman was largely occupied with merging the consumer goods division from Henry Wallace's department of commerce with the capital goods operations in the RFC. This presented a major administrative problem meshed in with a multitude of tricky details.

Bald at 22 when he got his first "big time" job as cashier of a little bank at New Point, Ind., Fushman laughingly recalled, "My bald head helped land that first job—it made a farm kid look mature." His friends still think such a "top" is to be desired in facing this mammoth task. "Your gray hairs won't show," they jokingly tell him.

Plenty of Headaches
The calm and efficient Fushman, however, just takes it all in stride. "Choosing good assistants" is the key to his administrative technique.

Even for the best of a chief, this job, however, is full of headaches and many are the squawks growing out of misinformation and misunderstandings on the part of the public.

The biggest noise right now is being made over the needs of veterans. Fushman is well aware of all this, and he's giving it his first attention. Details of this program are to be announced later in cooperation with the major veterans' organizations. This will help get first-hand information on surplus goods to the veterans, and, in turn, Uncle Sam will learn more about veterans' needs in this connection.

For example, under the law, governmental units get the first call on surplus items. Veterans come next, before the material is thrown out on the open market. Sometimes, goods first declared surplus are found to be useable by the agency involved, or some other governmental agency. Hence, something originally reported on the market never gets out. There are disappointments on the part of consumers, and this causes more complaints.

Again, the veterans may not get sufficient information. That could account for the lack of response on the offer of 10,000 jeeps, particularly, in the Chicago and Cincinnati areas.

Sometimes, government agencies are charged with hoarding, and that kicks back on Fushman. Of course, there is nothing he can do about the goods that are "not" certified to his agency.

For instance, there is a great hue and cry for heavy Army trucks, particularly from the returning veterans going into business. The veterans pass by a certain Army warehouse and see the trucks stacked high, and they simply cannot understand it. However, until the agency in question jars loose with the goods, Fushman can do nothing.

Here is how his efforts fit into the whole picture. The Surplus Property administration, headed by W. Stuart Symington, lays down the broad policies. The SPA is the over-all planning agency but it does none of the actual job of selling.

When an agency has material which it cannot use, the Surplus Property administration is notified, but the transfer is made to the War Assets corporation in the RFC. Then, it is up to Fushman to take over and get the goods rolling to the ultimate consumer.

In addition to the priorities to government agencies and veterans, Fushman must also consider geographical distribution. A great surplus of manufactured goods, shoes, for example, could be disposed of entirely at the point of availability in New York, but that would not be fair, so Fushman must see to it that the rest of the country gets a share.

On the whole, Fushman says his big problem is to broaden the base of selling.

The capital goods section offers no major problem. It is all a matter of supply and demand. Plenty of war plants to go around, and so nobody is squabbling too much over capital goods. There is great competition, indeed, bitter at times, over the scarce consumer goods, and Fushman finds his problems multiplied in this field.

Understands "Scarcity"

Fushman, himself, is in a position to understand the "scarcity problems" in the way of consumer goods. When he grew up on a farm near Greensburg, Ind., everything a little boy wanted was very scarce. After tenant farming for several years, the elder Fushman managed to buy his own tract. This involved plenty of penny-pinching. Later, when young Arthur went to the University of Indiana, he did plenty of chores to pay his way.

After working at two small banks in southeast Indiana, Fushman went to Detroit where he became associated with a trust company. Later, about 10 years ago, he joined the RFC office in Detroit, then advanced to the management. He is on leave from that job at present. Fushman is married and has two teen-age children.

WALLACE LINKS TRADE TO LOAN

Upholds Aid To England As Major Spur To Export Business

CHICAGO, Feb. 19—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace, said last night that an expanding foreign trade is an "absolute essential" if this country is to progress and prosper in a competitive free enterprise system.

Wallace, appearing before the Chicago World Trade conference, urged approval of the $3,750,000,000 loan to Great Britain and said the United States must provide most of the $15,000,000,000 needed to refinance world trade for a three-year postwar reconstruction period.

"We may not want to be the only big creditor nation in the world," he said, "but that is what we have to be—whether we like it or not."

The British loan, Wallace said, is not merely a commercial agreement between two great nations—"it is an inseparable part of the basis for economic cooperation throughout the world."

Asserting that free enterprise can survive only in an atmosphere of confidence based on world security, Wallace said that approximately 10 per cent of all jobs in this country depend directly on foreign trade.

"Wipe out this 10 per cent," he said, "and you set in motion a devastating cycle of depression and mass unemployment that can lead only to social and economic chaos—or to a controlled economy of scarcity and national self-sufficiency."

LIVE HOMES FOR ART

"We wanted to place our collection in a live building". Thus Viscount and Viscountess Lee of Fareham, England, explain their choice of Hart House at the University of Toronto, to house their collection of art treasures. Hart House is the community house of the university, where undergraduate activities are carried on. With 6,000 students using the building daily, the donors expect a greater urge toward craftsmanship to be aroused than would be the case if the treasures were in a museum.

There is some force in their position. A year or two ago a farsighted Englishman gave to a public school a boyhood letter of the great British naval hero, Lord Nelson, saying that he had little talent but was determined to make his way in the world. The giver felt that such a letter would do more good as a daily inspiration for youth than it could, stored in a great public institution.

And yet Lord and Lady Lee may not know how live are American museums today. They are no cloistered hiding-places for treasures, but busy centers of artists, art-lovers and children learning to paint, draw or carve. Perhaps the word "museum" should substitute another term. Or perhaps they should make greater use of modern publicity to inform the public of new acquisitions and activities.

CALORIES

THE average American knows little, and cares less, about the "calory" or energy value of food, but will be learning from now on, as world food problems grow in scope and importance. The boys and girls in school will probably be more interested in their physiology lessons, and father and mother will be trying to catch up.

They will learn how many calories are required for an adequate meal, by children and grown-ups, and how people learn to distinguish the foods that have a lot of calories in them from those that give less nourishment. The average diet required to keep people in good health is rated at 2,650 calories, along with certain other nutritional elements. Such facts now, the world over, are coming to be required reading, and also required eating where this is possible.

New York, the world's greatest city and our supreme civic pride, stops the tug boats which are to her what railroads and airplanes are to the rest of the country. And most of the nation's vital transportation might be tied up, if citizens and public authorities generally were foolish enough to follow suit.

Even a national government might be rendered helpless.

Big, Rich Men Don't Last
Long in Capital if Phony
Spectacular Names Splash
Into Headlines Then Fade

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—There's no particular reason to get overly excited about Ed Pauley, that Big, Rich Oil Man whom nobody but Mr. Truman seems to think will make a good assistant secretary of the Navy. There's always been an Ed Pauley in every administration, particularly at the beginning of every new administration.

Anybody who has lived in Washington for any length of time must remember how Big Rich Men used to appear on the political horizon in other presidential regimes. "Where'd he come from?" "What's he here for?" "Where'd he get his money?" Such were the questions asked.

If the newcomer was genuine, he managed to survive the questions. But if he wasn't genuine, he faded out. No matter how many parties he gave, no matter how many whacks on the back and greetings of "Haw-haw-haw, my boy," he administered, he always faded out. For it's true, no matter how much you heard said to the contrary, few complete phonies last long in the capital.

For a while you may hear some spectacular name mentioned again and again. You may read it so often you begin to feel sorry for the printer who has to set the letters thereof in type. Then suddenly you hear and see the name no more. Later somebody will ask, "What happened to Jim Splashit?" "Haven't the faintest idea. But it seems to me I heard he didn't get the job he was after. You know how things are in this town. Big hurrah today. Tomorrow—nothing."

If Pauley is basically OK, he will live through the storm of opposition to his appointment. If he isn't, he'll fade out faster than

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—That project whereby the theater guild is assisting 10 men from such assorted places as New York, Chicago, Dorchester, Mass., Des Moines, Ia., and Salt Lake City to realize their potentialities as playwrights is moving right along.

The men in seminar at the guild offices every other Wednesday evening from 7:30 to 10:30 under the direction of Kenneth Rowe, who is on leave of absence from the University of Michigan's English department while he serves as the head of the guild's play department and the seminar.

"Of course, there is no writing done in the seminar," Rowe explained. "The men bring in synopses, scenes, acts or possibly just ideas for discussion. Anyone who has suggestions to offer may make them briefly or at length and the writer whose work is under discussion is free to use or discard them as he sees fit.

"There is one rule they have to follow. Any suggestions or criticisms must be in the spirit of the author's approach to his work. A critic cannot make suggestions in line with the way he might have attacked the idea under discussion; He has to follow the creator's thesis."

The first class was held last Dec. 12. There will be 20 sessions. The men do their writing outside and are under no compulsion to finish a certain amount of work on a deadline. Four of the men were chosen because work they submitted to the guild resulted in them getting $500 awards. The six others were chosen on a basis of plays submitted to the guild and personal interviews. They have no scholarships. There is no fee of any kind involved in the seminar.

The guild will not make public the names of six who won no awards, since it doesn't want them to be under pressure from agents, producers, etc. The four with awards are Haig Manogian, Robert McKnight, Daniel Rudsten and Theodore Ward. McKnight is from Homer, N. Y. Ward, a negro, is a Brooklynite via Salt Lake City and Chicago. The other two are from New York City.

The men are aged 21 to 43. The oldest man is a successful writer in fields outside playwrighting. Some of the others have regular jobs; a few are doing nothing but writing.

No outsiders are permitted to attend the seminar sessions. Therese Helburn and Lawrence Langner, guild director, show up occasionally to discuss problems. Rowe is available outside seminar hours for consultation, but you can't get him on the telephone before 2 p. m. He keeps the early part of the day free for reading plays.

The guild has no actual strings on the 10 men, although it can't avoid having what amounts to a "first reading" of any play produced in the seminar. It could and probably would make an offer for anything it liked, but the author would be under no obligation to accept the offer.

A few of the plays, which are on a wide range of subjects and show some interesting experimental approaches, may have the advantage of tryouts this summer at the Stock Theater Langner will reopen in Westport, Conn., after its war-time closing.

A last year's glamor queen.

Especially is the Washington fadeout a common happening in the social whirl of the town. It's easy to remember many exciting hostesses and hosts who suddenly appeared within our worldly gates and promptly began giving big parties. Certainly many people went to the big parties of the newcomers. Many of the people were the right people, too. But Washington is a hypocritical place. Here, accepting hospitality doesn't mean you approve of the dispenser of the hospitality. It's an axiom of the town: "Almost anybody will go any place he or she is invited."

You've simply got to be socially industrious if you want to get around at all here. But even that won't guarantee you a place in the best dinner lists if you haven't some genuine stuff.

Now a final word about Pauley and his kind. It is rather disturbing to the determinedly idealistic Democrat to observe how often the Big Rich fellows, who splash on the Washington stage, happen first to get footholds on the Democratic national committee.

PEOPLE: Mrs. Francis Biddle, wife of the former United States attorney-general who is now assisting United States Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson with the war criminals trials at Nuremberg, is keeping a diary made up of letters received from her husband. Except for censorable material, Mr. Biddle is writing detailed accounts of what he sees and hears in Germany. The reports would make fascinating reading between the covers of a book.

Mrs. Millard Tydings, wife of the senator from Maryland, who has been crusading for a central hospital in Washington, is looking mightily pleased. She thinks the government is really interested in her plan. And she has her big brown eyes on the site for the building.

CELEBRITY NOTES: Young Bill Batt, son of Big Bill Batt who did a fine job on the War Production Board, is going to run for Congress from Pennsylvania. Young Bill, who served overseas with distinction, has come home to America determined to do his bit in the business of government—if the voters want him.

Young Bill has barely turned 25 optimistic summers. He's got the family brains and charm. So maybe he will be the first Democrat to crash through in Republican Montgomery county. Powerful Senator Joe Guffey is on Young Bill's side. Good friend to have here in Pennsylvania is Joe Guffey.

A kibitzer wondered after the deal how South ever managed to make his last two bids, of 5-Diamonds and 6-Diamonds. Here was the way he figured it: "Since my opponents are using an artificial 1-Club opening bid to show a hand of pretty substantial strength, their opening bid of 1-Spade can be rather weak, especially when not vulnerable. So I knew East couldn't have too much. Then when West, a very fine player, too, hopped all the way into 4-Spades instead of showing general strength with 3-Spades, I knew his hand was not very strong. He had suit length and a fine spade fit, but none too much high stuff.

"I didn't have to be very brilliant then to know that North had a bit of something for me. At the very least he ought to have about an ace and a king. The opponents had really told me so with their own bids. So I called the 5-Diamonds. Then, when West was so anxious to keep me from playing that, and bid his 5-Spades, I read him as weaker than I did the first time, and therefore North perhaps stronger. So I made the slam bid. Notice that, if North had not liked diamonds and had to take out into hearts, I had a swell fit for him."

A JOB FOR JENNY

by Faith Baldwin

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

JENNY FELT as if she would fly to pieces, she wanted to stamp her foot, childishly. She wanted to cry. She said, instead, as coolly: "Don't give me that routine. It's just stalling. I am not out of my mind, but I think you are. I've been pretty dumb, Ede. I didn't think you even knew Justice Hathaway except by sight—I'd even forgotten you'd met him through his sister at their house. And then Charlotte Granley said she'd seen you together in Boston."

Ede said angrily, "That's the sort of thing she would say..." She caught herself, and stopped, but not quite in time.

"Why?" asked Jenny. "You don't know her. So you must have heard about her..." and there's no one who'd tell you about her except—her ex-husb."

Ede said sullenly, "There's Mary."

"I doubt if she'd discuss Charlotte Granley with you," Jenny retorted. "But it wasn't just Charlotte. It was Agnes Simpson, meeting me on the bus and saying she hadn't seen you for weeks, right after you'd told Gram and me you'd spent the afternoon with her. It was seeing you with my own eyes in the Hathaway car, and especially overhearing what you said to Justice the night..."

Ede grew white. The anger which had inflamed her burned out. In its place there was an enormous weariness, blurring her beauty. She asked flatly, "What did you hear?"

"You asked him," said Jenny, "if he ever thought of Boston, and walking across the Common and how cold it was and—"

Ede said wildly, "All right, then. Have it your own way. I have been seeing him, off and on. As for Boston, it was an accident. I went to Worcester, Edna had to go to Boston, so I trailed along..." I ran into Justice and we had a drink at the Ritz and then I met Edna and went on back with her—"

It was very thin. It was like gauze. You saw through it. Yet it was possible, perfectly possible. Jenny said, with sudden aching sorrow, "I do so want to believe you, Ede."

Ede sat down on Jenny's bed. She put her hands over her face, the long, luxury-loving hands with their painted nails. Her hair was a golden glow about her abashed head. She said, muffled, "You'll never understand."

Jenny knelt by the bed. Her heart was beating in slow, sickening pulsations. She said, "I'll try, Ede. I promise."

Ede took her hands away and stared straight ahead of her. She said, after a moment: "I'm in love with Dick I'm terribly in love with him. I keep telling myself that, all the time. Especially when I'm alone, shut up in my old room here, at night. Lying awake. Thinking about him, thinking about us, and wondering. Trying to remember what he looks like. You don't know what a special sort of hell that is, Jenny. To try to remember how the person you love looks—and how his voice sounds. You can remember the words he said, but you can't remember his voice."

She broke off. Then she went on, her voice low and harsh, her brown eyes dry, and a little distended: "I'm lonely, I—I've been married. Before I was married I had a good time. Even here at home. Excitement," she said, "attention. Then, after I went away, I was on my own..." It was gay, it was amusing. Always someone to take you out to dinner, or buy you a cocktail and tell you that you were pretty, that you were exciting..." She could have..." She halted again. She said, "I didn't. Funny, but the men who aren't married, pay you the most attention, they're married, as a rule. The younger ones, those who aren't married, well, those I met couldn't afford orchestra seats and flowers and all the rest. But I was just being awfully entertained. Jenny, I didn't fall in love or even think I could until I met Dick—"

Jenny was silent, kneeling there. She was aware of a feeling of complete dissociation. This sort of thing happened to other people, it happened in books and plays, but not to her and Ede. A scene like this, packed with violence and anger and hurt. The things she'd said, the things Ede had said—and left unsaid. It wasn't real. Yet the room was real and familiar, and the one light shining. The house was real, the house in which she had lived for 20 years. She could hear the soft teakettle purring from the basket on the other side of the room in which Butch lay, with her kittens. She could feel Gram in the house, quiet in the light sleep of old age, not far away. She could smell the spring through the opened windows—

Ede said, "You aren't listening. Jen, listen to me! I didn't want this to happen. I saw Justice Hathaway first when I went to Mary's..." No, that's not true. I let him pick me up one day. I'd been shopping, I stopped at the Tavern and had a cup of tea, and he was in there, in the bar, and he came over, and he knew me. He said, 'I've heard about you from Mary...'"

Jenny did not speak. Ede went on, presently: "It doesn't matter, does it? How or when or where? I did see him at Mary's. And we had lunch, a day or so later, out of town..." and it went on like that.

Jenny asked, "Are you in love with him?"

"Oh," said Ede restlessly, "how do I know? Can you love two men at the same time? I keep telling myself, it's Dick, always..." It's Dick I love and want..." and miss so dreadfully...

And keep loving, somehow. Our time was so short," she said passionately. "Can't you understand that? And because I want him and miss him I—I—There's no use," she told Jenny, and her tone was despairing. "You can't possibly know what it's like. No, I don't love Justice," she concluded, "but he—somehow—he makes me know I'm alive."

Jenny rose. She felt stiff, her knees and her hands and her lips. She moved her lips cautiously and spoke, and her voice sounded stiff, too, in her ears.

A JOB FOR JENNY

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

JENNY FELT as if she would fly to pieces, she wanted to stamp her foot, childishly. She wanted to cry. She said, instead, as coolly:

"Don't give me that routine. It's just stalling. I am not out of my mind, but I think you are. I've been pretty dumb, Edie. I didn't think you even knew Justice Hathaway except by sight—I'd even forgotten you'd met him through his sister at their house. And then Charlotte Granley said she'd seen you together in Boston."

Edie said angrily, "That's the sort of thing she would say . . . She caught herself, and stopped, but not quite in time.

"Why?" asked Jenny. "You don't know her. So you must have heard about her . . . and there's no one who'd tell you about her except—her ex-husband."

Edie said sullenly, "There's Mary." "I doubt if she'd discuss Charlotte Granley with you," Jenny retorted. "But it wasn't just Charlotte. It was Agnes Simpson, meeting me on the bus and saying she hadn't seen you for weeks, right after you'd told Gram and me you'd spent the afternoon with her. It was seeing you with my own eyes in the Hathaway car, and especially overhearing what you said to Justice tonight . . ."

Edie grew white. The anger which had inflamed her burned out. In its place there was an enormous weariness, blurring her beauty. She asked flatly, "What did you hear?"

"You asked him," said Jenny. "If he ever thought of Boston, and walking across the Common and how cold it was and—"

Edie said wildly, "All right, then. Have it your own way. I have been seeing him, off and on. As for Boston, it was an accident. I went to Worcester, Edna had to go to Boston, so I trailed along. . . . I ran into Justice and we had a drink at the Ritz and then I met Edna and went on back with her—"

It was very thin. It was like gauze. You saw through it. Yet it was possible, perfectly possible. Jenny said, with sudden aching sorrow, "I do so want to believe you, Edie."

Edie sat down on Jenny's bed. She put her hands over her face, the long, luxury-loving hands with their painted nails. Her hair was a golden glow about her abashed head. She said, muffled, "You'll never understand."

Jenny knelt by the bed. Her heart was beating in slow, sickening pulsations. She said, "Till try, Edie. I promise."

Edie took her hands away and she stared straight ahead of her. She said, after a moment:

"I'm in love with Dick. I'm terribly in love with him. I keep telling myself that, all the time. Especially when I'm alone, shut up in my old room here, at night. Lying awake. Thinking about him, thinking about us, and wondering. Trying to remember what he looks like. You don't know what a special sort of hell that is, Jenny. To try to remember how the person you love looks—and how his voice sounds. You can remember the words he said, but you can't remember his voice."

She broke off, then she went on, her voice low and harsh, her brown eyes dry, and a little distended:

"I'm lonely, I—I've been married. Before I was married I had a good time. Even here at home. Excitement," she said, "attention. Then, after I went away, I was on my own. . . . It was gay, it was amusing. Always someone to take you out to dinner, or buy you a cocktail and tell you that you were pretty, that you were exciting. . . . She moved her shoulders restlessly. "I could have . . ."

She said, "I didn't. Funny, but the men who, if you're on your own, pay you the most attention, they're married, as a rule. The younger ones, those who aren't married, well, those I met couldn't afford orchestra seats and flowers and all the rest. But I was just being awfully entertained, Jenny. I didn't fall in love or even think I could until I met Dick—"

Jenny was silent, kneeling there. She was aware of a feeling of complete dislocation. This sort of thing happened to other people, it happened in books and plays, but not to her and Edie. A scene like this, packed with violence and anger and hurt. The things she'd said, the things Edie had said—and left unsaid. It wasn't real. Yet the room was real and familiar, and the one light shining. The house was real, the house in which she had lived for 20 years. She could hear the soft teakettle purring from the basket on the other side of the room in which Butch lay, with her kittens. She could feel Gram in the house, quiet in the light sleep of old age, not far away. She could smell the spring through the opened windows.

Edie said, "You aren't listening. Jen, listen to me! I didn't want this to happen. I saw Justice Hathaway first when I went to Mary's. . . . No, that's not true. I let him pick me up one day. I'd been shopping. I stopped at the Tavern and had a cup of tea, and he was in there, in the bar, and he came over. He knew me. He said, 'I've heard about you from Mary . . .'

Jenny said, "It doesn't matter, Edie, presently. 'It doesn't matter, does it? How or when or where? I did say that to Mary's. And he had lunch a day or so later, out of town . . . and it went on like that . . ."

Jenny asked, "Are you in love with him?"

"Oh," said Edie restlessly, "how do I know? Can you love two men at the same time? I keep telling myself, it's Dick, always. . . . I Dick I love and want . . . and miss so dreadfully. . . . And keep looking, somehow. Our time was so short," she said passionately. "Can't you understand that? And because I want him and miss him—There's no use," she told Jenny, and her tone was despairing. "You can't possibly know what it's like. No, I don't love Justice," she concluded. "But he—somehow—he makes me know I'm alive."

Jenny rose. She felt stiff, her knees and her hands and her lips. She moved her lips cautiously and spoke, and her voice sounded stiff, too, in her ears.

She said sullenly, "That's no excuse."

Edie rose, too. She said, "You wouldn't know."

Jenny is very young, thought Edie. She can look at me with those accusing eyes, but she doesn't understand, she doesn't."

"I don't want to know," said Jenny, and she didn't mean what Edie had meant. She didn't want to know whether or not Edie had lied about Boston. She didn't want to know anything. She felt ill. She wanted to say what she had to say and be done with it, for always.

She said, "Millions of other women are waiting, just as you are. A great many of them haven't been married much longer, or as long. Maybe it's hard for them to remember. Yet most of them do. She lifted her red head and looked straight into Edie's amber eyes. "I don't know how far this has gone between you and Justice. I don't want to know. But whether you met on the Common, as you said, by accident, or whether you never went to Worcester, but straight to Boston to spend the week-end there with him, isn't entirely the point. When I think of Dick, I think of all the men like him, sweating, dying, fighting. It's so good, Edie. Just because you're lonely. Do you suppose Dick isn't lonely? You frighten me," she said, "and you—disgust me."

Edie was scarlet. She was hostile again, with anger renewed. She said, "What I do or don't do isn't your business. It's mine!"

"All right," said Edie. "Dick's, if you want it that way. But not yours."

"I'll make it my business," Jenny promised. "After Dick gets home you can do as you please. That's between you and him. But until he does . . . She stopped and then said evenly, "You'll stop seeing Justice Hathaway. . . . I'll stop you."

"How?" asked Edie sharply.

Jenny said, "There are ways. She looked at Edie, her eyes brilliant. "I'll find one."

Edie walked to the door. She paused, with her hand on the knob. She asked, quite casually, "I suppose you intend to tell Gram?"

"No," said Jenny. "I don't. She has enough on her plate. She won't know from me."

"That's white of you," said Edie. "And Dick?"

Jenny blazed visibly. She said, "One heel's enough in the family."

"Thanks," said Edie. She added, "If you aren't going to tattle, then how?"

Jenny smiled a little and Edie stared at her. She started, "I believe you're in love with him yourself. I believe—well," said Edie, on a long breath, "the picture begins to come clearer. All this wrath and righteousness, isn't it on my account nor the precious family honor, nor because of Dick. It's because you're in love with him," she said again, "and you're jealous. You think you can—"

Jenny got between Edie and the door. She opened the door and stood there, speaking softly in order not to awaken Gram. She said, "Maybe."

WASHINGTON Report

Big, Rich Men Don't Last Long in Capital if Phony Spectacular Names Splash Into Headlines Then Fade.

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—There's no particular reason to get overly excited about Ed Pauley, that Big, Rich Oil Man whom nobody but Mr. Truman seems to think will make a good assistant secretary of the Navy. There's always been an Ed Pauley in every administration, particularly at the beginning of every new administration.

Anybody who has lived in Washington for any real length of time must

Papers On Education Read To Monday Club

Mrs. Cleon Webb,
Mrs. Paul Cromley
Present Theme

Two papers of unusual interest were read to the members of the Monday club when that organization met Monday night in the trustees room at Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Robert Adkins, president was in charge of the meeting during the business session at which time Mrs. Norber Cochran was elected to active membership and two other new members were welcomed, Mrs. Robert Young and Miss Mary Katherine May.

Mrs. Cleon Webb spoke on the "Audio-Visual Trend in Education," some of the highlights of which were:

Radio is a new force which science has placed in the hands of civilization. Scarcely more than two decades old the use of radio in education has already attained the status of almost universal acceptance. Not only are teachers coming increasingly to recognize the potentialities of this new instructional method for enriching the content of school experience, but research studies that have been conducted in Ohio and Wisconsin, provide both quantitative and qualitative proof of radio's educational effectiveness.

It is not surprising that the educational institutions, which have so constantly sought new and better techniques and tools of education, should have been among the pioneers in radio broadcasting. Considered as an educational force, radio is not a separate entity. It is simply a conveyor of sound. Properly used the radio may become an invaluable aid in education if the broadcaster learns to master the art of teaching by radio.

Application of visual-sensory aids to instruction is found in all parts of the world. Exhibits, slides, charts, posters, silent and sound film slides and motion pictures have become important tools in the inner and outer relationships of the more prominent industries. During the war it was necessary to train men and women in the shortest possible time, so that they could carry on their assignments in a creditable manner. As these training aids were so successful they are now being used by our schools more and more.

Marvin Camras, of the Illinois Institute of Technology, invented a device for recording music telephone conversations, radio programs, or the voice of the person interviewed. His discovery was incorporated into a small machine which was taken over by the Army and Navy. Small sets which may be carried in one's pocket are worn in the coat lapel will soon be manufactured by use in the business world.

Mrs. Paul Cromley discussed "Short Cuts, Army Style in Education" a resume of which follows—

During the war years our military services undertook one of the greatest educational projects ever attempted in the history of the world. The resources of our military and civilian educational institutions were marshaled to train millions of men and women for the war industries and the military services under the pressures of war. These new developments, during the war, will lead to many changes in the postwar years.

The impact of the war on our schools did much to overcome out-moded traditions. The experiences of the military in offering courses for a period of time, sufficient to accomplish course objectives, tended to break down traditional schedules and machinery. The curriculum was analyzed to eliminate duplication and to determine how well needs were met. Psychological tests, aptitude tests and personal interviews were used to that end.

The question has been asked, "Can the schools teach the G. I. way?"

According to the Army-Navy technique we would find the class around a phonograph, learning as a child learns by listening and trying to imitate. The sand tables, comic strips, cartoons, movies and every available teaching device was used. The movie film was considered the most versatile. Psychologists say 90 per cent of all learning comes through the eyes. It is estimated that 20,000 16-mm projectors are in use in the school systems at present.

Another method was the Renshaw System of Recognition. Dr. Samuel Renshaw of the psychology department at Ohio State University is its author. It taught the G. I. to recognize and identify so many more objects in less time.

The end of the war makes it imperative for us to re-examine our program and to reconstruct it so that it will make a maximum contribution to the educational development of the children of today.

The G. I. Bill of Rights will give each veteran the chance to secure a higher education. From a survey the veterans want vocational, industrial, professional and business training. Therefore, the Army-

Sam Johnson Again Directing Students In Three Act Comedy

An event which in the past has been a prominent activity in the Circleville high school has been revived with the announcement of a selection of a play by the Junior class. The play which has been chosen is a comedy in three acts, entitled "Come Rain or Shine," written by Marjane and Joseph Hayes.

Samuel R. Johnson, who was recently discharged from the army and has resumed his position as dramatic instructor at the local school, will direct the presentation.

Casting has been under way for the past week and roles will be assigned soon when rehearsals will begin. The date for the play has been set for March 14 and 15.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Junior class beginning February 25. The play will be produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, publisher, New York.

Navy training program will affect not only educational methods in peacetime but also the tempo of business and industry.

Mrs. Chas. Stofor Eulogized At Meet Of Past Presidents

Mrs. John D. Newton was hostess to the members of the Past Presidents club of the Daughters of Union Veterans at her home in North Court street, Monday night.

In the absence of Mrs. Cora Coffland, Mrs. Frank Rader, vice president, presided at the business session when it was decided to give card table covers to the Veterans hospital at Chillicothe.

Mrs. L. E. Foreman, junior past president of the tent, was received into the club at this meeting.

A memorial service for a departed member, Mrs. Charles Stofor, was held in which Mrs. E. L. Tolbert read an article "In Memoriam" and then as president of the Ohio Department of the DUV gave an intimate sketch of Mrs. Stofor's life.

Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer read an original poem which she had written in memory of Mrs. Stofor. In conclusion, group singing of "Nearer My God To Thee" was followed by prayer by Miss Laura Mader.

The program for the evening was in observance of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. Mrs. Reichelderfer was chairman of the program committee.

Mrs. Frank Rader read "Washington's Prayer" and Miss Emma Mader a sketch of Washington as a patriot and statesman. Miss Laura Mader contributed an article on the life of Lincoln and "Quotations by Lincoln" were read by Mrs. James Carpenter. Mrs. Reichelderfer's contribution to the program was a reading, "The Three Mothers" which covered episodes in the life of Lincoln.

Following the program the guests were invited to the dining room where the table was centered with a bouquet of Spring flowers and decorated in red and white in keeping with the Valentine theme. Mrs. Newton served refreshments assisted by Miss Ada Hammel and Mrs. Carpenter.

The March meeting will be held at the home of the Misses Mader, East Franklin street.

Neff Girls Entertain Their Interest Group

Girls' Interest Group of the Methodist church met Monday night at the Neff home, Pinckney street with 10 members present. The meeting was opened with a song, followed by the report of the secretary-treasurer, and was closed with a prayer. Betty Lou Helwagen was admitted as a new member. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held March 20 as a St. Patrick's party in the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Cromley Fetes Mrs. David Dill

Mrs. Martin Cromley was hostess at a shower given in honor of Mrs. David Dill, who leaves March 1 for Cleveland to make her future home.

Mrs. Dill received her beautiful gifts from a decorated Valentine box. After the opening of the shower gifts a salad course was served to the following guests:

Mrs. Gordon Dunkle and Peggy, Chillicothe; Mrs. Frank Haines, Mrs. Jean Nisley and Mrs. Colin Campbell, Washington C. H.; Miss Donna Dill, Columbus; Mrs. Ivah Dill and Mrs. Frank Dill, Amanda; Mrs. Arthur Sark, Mrs. Alma May and Donna, Mrs. Blanche Pickering, Mrs. Bernice Brinker and Joan, Mrs. Homer Reber, Mrs. Anna Hedges, Mrs. Russell Hedges, Mrs. Lydia Brinker, Mrs. Charles Hay, Mrs. Harold Hines, Mrs. Will Scothorn, Mrs. Della Rife, Mrs. Kenneth Holtry, Misses Gladys and Thelma Hines, Mrs. Betty Jinks; Mrs. Clark McFarland, Mrs. Hugh Solt, Mrs. Homer Quillen, Mrs. Russell Balthaser, Miss Dora Payne, Mrs. C. D. Bennett, Mrs. Walter Osborne, Mrs. Thaddeus Cromley and Elsie, Miss Joyce Drexbach, Misses Alice, Anna and Harriet Weaver, Mrs. Dwight Woodworth, Misses Altha and Lillie Pierce, Mrs. Robert Barr, Jr., Mrs. George Smith, Miss Harriet Heffner, Mrs. Kermit Massie, Mrs. J. Birthday Anniversary Home Coming Party

A family dinner was held Sunday, February 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Bowers, Pickaway township, in honor of their sons, Donald, who just returned from the European Theatre of War and Wayne Lee who celebrated his birthday anniversary.

Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Parker, Jr., and sons, Billie and Bobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bower and son, Robert Lewis, Pfc. and Mrs. Warren R. Hoffman, Mrs. Donald Bower and Miss Ellen Bower, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Eby and son, Lenny, of Springfield; Daniel Fetherolf, the honored guests and the hosts.

LOOK OUT FOR PIN-WORMS

Recent medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children (and grown-ups too) may be victims of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting what is wrong! And these pests, living inside the human body, can cause real distress. So watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms—especially the aggravating rectal itch. Get JAYNE'S P-W and follow the directions.

P-W is the Pin-Worm treatment developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, after years of patient research. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms. Ask your druggist: P-W for Pin-Worms!

A SMOOTH spun rayon gabardine suit like this one will give smart service all year round. It features a snug-fitting jacket, winged shoulders, the new deeper armhole and wide cuffs on three-quarter sleeves. Wear it with a blouse, with jewelry at the neckline or with an ascot scarf as shown here. If you want accurate information about the rayon fabrics in your suits—look for factual labels that give you the results of laboratory tests for dry cleanliness and wear qualities. You may have a free copy of a helpful leaflet, "Mending Tricks for Rayons," by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Woman's Department of this newspaper.

Orphans Entertained By Beta Sigma Phi

Members of Epsilon Kappa chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority were responsible for the entertainment of 32 little wards of the Pickaway county children's home Monday evening when a movie "Annie Oakley," featuring Barbara Stanwyck was shown at the home. The movie is the property of Curtis Eldridge of Columbus, who presented the film at the home. A short comedy "The Bully" was also shown.

Following the showing of the movie, refreshments of chocolate ice cream bars were provided for the children by the members of the sorority.

Miss Jean Agler and Miss Marjorie Oyer were members of the committee that was responsible for the pleasant evening. Other members who went to the home and assisted in the entertainment were Miss Kathryn Blubaugh, Mrs. Frank Wantz and Miss Dorothy Schleich.

At the last regular meeting of the sorority, Miss Schleich was elected corresponding secretary and Evelyn Hinton, chairman of the ways and means committee. Both of these elections were re-

Sam Johnson Again Directing Students In Three Act Comedy

An event which in the past has been a prominent activity in the Circleville high school has been revived with the announcement of a selection of a play by the Junior class. The play which has been chosen is a comedy in three acts, entitled "Come Rain or Shine," written by Marijane and Joseph Hayes.

Samuel R. Johnson, who was recently discharged from the army and has resumed his position as dramatic instructor at the local school, will direct the presentation.

Casting has been under way for the past week and roles will be assigned soon when rehearsals will begin. The date for the play has been set for March 14 and 15.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Junior class beginning February 25.

The play will be produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, publisher, New York.

Navy training program will affect not only educational methods in peacetime but also the tempo of business and industry.

Mrs. Chas. Stofor Eulogized At Meet Of Past Presidents

Mrs. John D. Newton was hostess to the members of the Past Presidents club of the Daughters of Union Veterans at her home in North Court street, Monday night. In the absence of Mrs. Cora Coffland, Mrs. Frank Rader, vice president, presided at the business session when it was decided to give card table covers to the Veterans hospital at Chillicothe.

Mrs. L. E. Foreman, junior past president of the tent, was received into the club at this meeting. A memorial service for a departed member, Mrs. Charles Stofor, was held in which Mrs. E. L. Tolbert read an article "In Memoriam" and then as president of the Ohio Department of the DUV gave an intimate sketch of Mrs. Stofor's life.

Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer read an original poem which she had written in memory of Mrs. Stofor. In conclusion, group singing of "Nearer My God To Thee" was followed by prayer by Miss Laura Mader.

The program for the evening was in observance of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. Mrs. Reichelderfer was chairman of the program committee.

Mrs. Frank Rader read "Washington's Prayer" and Miss Emma Mader a sketch of Washington as a patriot and statesman. Miss Laura Mader contributed an article on the life of Lincoln and "Quotations by Lincoln" were read by Mrs. James Carpenter. Mrs. Reichelderfer's contribution to the program was a reading, "The Three Mothers" which covered episodes in the life of Lincoln.

Following the program the guests were invited to the dining room where the table was centered with a bouquet of Spring flowers and decorated in red and white in keeping with the Valentine theme. Mrs. Newton served refreshments assisted by Miss Ada Hammel and Mrs. Carpenter.

The March meeting will be held at the home of the Misses Mader, East Franklin street.

H.; Miss Donna Dill, Columbus; Mrs. Ivah Dill and Mrs. Frank Dill, Amanda; Mrs. Arthur Sark, Mrs. Alva May and Donna, Mrs. Blanche Pickering, Mrs. Bernice Brinker and Joan, Mrs. Homer Reber, Mrs. Anna Hedges, Mrs. Russell Hedges, Mrs. Lydia Brinker, Mrs. Charles Hay, Mrs. Harold Hines, Mrs. Will Scothern, Mrs. Della Rife, Mrs. Kenneth Holtry, Misses Gladys and Thelma Hines, Mrs. Betty Jinks; Mrs. Clark McFarland, Mrs. Hugh Solt, Mrs. Homer Quillen, Mrs. Russell Balthaser, Miss Dora Payne, Mrs. C. D. Bennett, Mrs. Walter Osborne, Mrs. Thaddeus Cromley and Elsie, Miss Joyce Dreshbach, Misses Alice, Anna and Harriet Weaver, Mrs. Dwight Woodworth, Misses Altha and Lillie Pierce, Mrs. Robert Barr, Jr., Mrs. George Smith, Miss Harriet Heffner, Mrs. Kermit Massie, Mrs. J. B. Cromley, all of the Ashville community.

Birthday Anniversary Home Coming Party
A family dinner was held Sunday, February 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Bowers, Pickaway township, in honor of their sons, Donald, who just returned from the European Theatre of War and Wayne Lee who celebrated his birthday anniversary.

Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Parker, Jr. and sons, Billie and Bobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bower and son, Robert Lewis, Pfc. and Mrs. Warren R. Hoffman, Mrs. Donald Bower and Miss Ellen Bower, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Eby and son, Lenny, of Springfield; Daniel Fetherolf, the honored guests and the hosts.

LOOK OUT FOR PIN-WORMS
Recent medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children (and grown-ups too) may be victims of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting what is wrong! And these pests, living inside the human body, can cause real distress.

So watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms—especially the aggravating rectal itch. Get JAYNE'S P-W and follow the directions.

P-W is the Pin-Worm treatment developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, after years of patient research. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms. Ask your druggist: P-W for Pin-Worms!

Spun Rayon Suit

A SMOOTH spun rayon gabardine suit like this one will give smart service all year round. It features a snug-fitting jacket, winged shoulders, the new deeper armhole and wide cuffs on three-quarter sleeves. Wear it with a blouse, with jewelry at the neckline or with an ascot scarf as shown here. If you want accurate information about the rayon fabrics in your suits—look for factual labels that give you the results of laboratory tests for dry cleanliness and wear qualities. You may have a free copy of a helpful leaflet, "Mending Tricks for Rayons," by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Woman's Department of this newspaper.

Orphans Entertained By Beta Sigma Phi

Members of Epsilon Kappa chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority were responsible for the entertainment of 32 little wards of the Pickaway county children's home Monday evening when a movie "Annie Oakley," featuring Barbara Stanwyck was shown at the home.

The movie is the property of Curtis Eldridge of Columbus, who presented the film at the home. A short comedy "The Bully" was also shown.

Following the showing of the movie, refreshments of chocolate ice cream bars were provided for the children by the members of the sorority.

Miss Jean Agler and Miss Marjorie Oyer were members of the committee that was responsible for the pleasant evening. Other members who went to the home and assisted in the entertainment were Miss Kathryn Blubaugh, Mrs. Frank Wantz and Miss Dorothy Schleich.

BOXING REVIVAL SCHEDULED HERE

Chillicothe Promoter Lining Up Fight Card For Wednesday Night

Professional boxing will be revived in Circleville with a full program in Memorial Hall Feb. 22, 1946, staged by Gene Rinehart, husky young promoter from Chillicothe.

Rinehart's pride and joy is 172-pound Johnny Hughes, a colored boy who was recently discharged from the Army. When in the Army, Hughes won 27 out of 32 fights.

Rinehart is now seeking a suitable opponent for Hughes. He has ten fighters of his own and plans to secure others from Columbus, Lancaster, Dayton and other cities to insure an interesting program.

Afield in Ohio

The story about a fox that side-stepped every new trick in the trapper's bag then fell for the oldest and simplest trick of all, is told by Dayton Parsons, fox trapping expert of the Ohio Division of Conservation.

This fox, Parsons related, was too smart to fall for any of the enticing baits he put out, but she had a weakness for persimmons. Parsons could see her tracks in the snow, so he set a trap in a cow path that led to one of the persimmon trees. He encased the trap in waxed paper to keep it from freezing to the snow, scattered a few persimmons about in a wide circle, then brushed the snow smooth again with a pine bow to remove all evidence of his work.

Next morning Parsons approached the set through a thick- et. He says he had to do some fancy stepping to evade the sharp teeth of the fox when she jumped at him from the bushes where the trap on her leg had become tangled. She was a gray fox and her pelt brought $160.

DREDGES PURCHASED

Dredging machines have been purchased as permanent equipment at Indian Lake and Lake St. Marys.

CHANGE IS MADE IN PROGRAM FOR INDUSTRIAL LOOP

A change has been made in the City Industrial loop program for Tuesday evening at Roll and Bowl.

The final contest of the evening originally scheduled between Roundtown Merchants and Williamsport has been changed. The Williamsport club is unable to play tonight.

The New Holland team of the Clarksburg league has been obtained to furnish the opposition for the Merchants.

There are three games on the docket for tonight's activities.

The first contest will be between Eshelman and John Deere to be followed by the feature game of the evening which finds undefeated Isaly's and William's A. C. tangling.

BOXING REVIVAL SCHEDULED HERE

Chillicothe Promoter Lining Up Fight Card For Wednesday Night

Professional boxing will be revived in Circleville with a full program in Memorial Hall Feb. 22. The February 22 staged by Gene Rinehart, husky young promoter from Chillicothe.

Rinehart's pride and joy is 172-pound Johnny Hughes, a colored boy who was recently discharged from the Army. When in the Army, Hughes won 27 out of 32 fights.

Rinehart is now seeking a suitable opponent for Hughes. He has ten fighters of his own and plans to secure others from Columbus, Lancaster, Dayton and other cities to insure an interesting program.

Afield in Ohio

The story about a fox that side-stepped every new trick in the trapper's bag then fell for the oldest and simplest trick of all, is told by Dayton Parsons, fox trapping expert of the Ohio Division of Conservation.

This fox, Parsons related, was too smart to fall for any of the enticing baits he put out, but she had a weakness for persimmons. Parsons could see her tracks in the snow, so he set a trap in a cow path that led to one of the persimmon trees. He encased the trap in waxed paper to keep it from freezing to the snow, scattered a few persimmons about in a wide circle, then brushed the snow smooth again with a pine bow to remove all evidence of his work.

Next morning Parsons approached the set through a thick et. He says he had to do some fancy stepping to evade the sharp teeth of the fox when she jumped at him from the bushes where the trap on her leg had become tangled. She was a gray fox and her pelt brought $160.

DREDGES PURCHASED

Dredging machines have been purchased as permanent equipment at Indian Lake and Lake St. Marys.

CHANGE IS MADE IN PROGRAM FOR INDUSTRIAL LOOP

A change has been made in the City Industrial loop program for Tuesday evening at Roll and Bowl.

The final contest of the evening originally scheduled between Roundtown Merchants and Williamsport has been changed. The Williamsport club is unable to play tonight.

The New Holland team of the Clarksburg league has been obtained to furnish the opposition for the Merchants.

There are three games on the docket for tonight's activities.

The first contest will be between Eshelman and John Deere to be followed by the feature game of the evening which finds undefeated Isaly's and William's A. C. tangling.

PUBLIC SALE

Having moved to smaller farms, the undersigned will offer for sale at public auction at the Mrs. Belle Bernet farm, located on the Williamsport and Chillicothe pike, 2 miles south of Williamsport, on Friday, Feb. 22, 1946

Lee Oma

Gus Lesnevich

TOPPING the week's hectic doings is the 10-round non-title bout between Gus Lesnevich, the light-heavy king, and Lee Oma, of Detroit, in New York's Madison Square Garden. (International)

Circleville's most surprising win of the season so far was the 55-29 victory over Washington here on February 9. Washington will be all-out for revenge against its most bitter rival.

The Tigers are pointing to the game with Washington and may not have given the Hillsboro encounter enough consideration. Under such a situation, an upset is possible.

In its game last Friday, Circleville thrilled the fans in winning over Greenfield, 37-33.

Thousands Of Dollars Said To Be Hidden In Home Of Maryland Recluse

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—Authorities had $500, a dead mouse and a white chicken feather to show for their efforts today. And the job wasn't even started.

The job was a search of thousands of assorted packages which nearly overflowed the five-room frame house of Miss Ada Kropp, 52-year-old Tuxedo, Md., recluse.

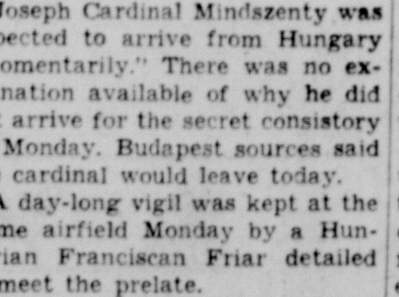

The object was to find several thousand dollars which Miss Kropp said she had tucked away from a $200-a-month income she had received from an estate during the past 20 years.

The search started after Miss Kropp was removed to the hospital in a diabetic coma. It was first believed she was destitute but she told authorities later of the cache in her home. When officers arrived there, they found it clogged with packages.

The first 200 parcels yielded $60—mostly in old large-size bills, little by little more money was discovered. By day's end it totaled approximately $500.

Searchers spent several minutes undoing one large parcel about two feet across. They finally came to the contents—a receipt for a newspaper subscription dated 1925.

SEVEN FAVORITE SONGS

Romance and good cheer are pictured in melody by the Andrews Sisters, Curt Massey, the Ambassadors, and Vic Schoen and his orchestra when the "N-K Musical Showroom" takes to the air Wednesday. The famous swing trio will offer "Some Sunday Morning," "Walter Winchell Rumba" and "Pennsylvania Polka." Baritone Curt Massey sings "I'm Not Having Any This Year" and, in duet with Patty Andrews, "Let It Snow, Let It Snow, Let It Snow." The ensemble presents "My Blue Heaven" and "Where Or When."

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Jimmy Stewart, who rang up one of Hollywood's finest war records, starting as a buck private and rising to Air Force colonel in charge of thousand-plane raids over Germany, is slated to appear on "Suspense," radio's outstanding "theatre of thrills" program, on Thursday.

Are glasses really needed to correct poor eyesight or is proper exercise enough? "Exploring the Unknown," the popular science series, examines the controversial question when it dramatizes "The Eye," in the broadcast Sunday.

Newest popular song by Maestro Meredith Willson, finished this week, carries the title, "I Never Could Say Good-Bye." Dialers may hear it on the Burns and Allen Show shortly.

Bob Hawk's comedy quiz took on a zoological aspect this past week. His first contestant answered to the name of "Fox." A little later a woman turned up by the name of "Wolf." On the west coast repeat broadcast there was a "Mare," a "Cub," and, believe it or not, a "Whale."

Community Makes Profit

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. — Profits from the borough's electric current sales paid all the community expenses for 1945, with $2,904.70 left over.

Borough council reviewed figures which showed surplus revenue realized from distribution of electricity covered administration, property protection, health and sanitation, highways, library and recreation expenses.

Congressional Record Fans

LINTON, Ind.—Henry Bradeweg and Logan Goodman of Linton both have chosen the Congressional Record as their favorite reading material. Logan says he doesn't miss a word and is acquainted with the "style" of each of the lawmakers. He can give the record offhand of most of them.

Council May Amend Ordinance To Ban Sunday Sale of 3.2 Beer

GERHARDT FINDS AUTHORITY FOR LEGAL CHANGE

Council Understood To Be In Favor Of Stricter Sabbath Rule

AKRON LAW IS CITED

Mert Marshall Will Not Oppose Move But Views It Unfavorably

Circleville's ordinance permitting the sale of 3.2 beer on Sunday may be amended when the city council meets at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

City Solicitor George E. Gerhardt will inform council of a ruling received from Charles G. Schnur, Ohio assistant attorney general, granting the council authority to ban the sale of 3.2 beer on the Sabbath.

When originally passed the ordinance permitted Sunday sales of 3.2 beer because members of council expressed their opinion that a clause prohibiting such sales might be invalid.

Ruling Sought

Solicitor Gerhardt then sought the ruling from the office of Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins.

The opinion, just received by the Circleville city solicitor and based on a 3.2 beer-banning ordinance at Akron, says, in part:

"A case directly in point, Akron against Scaler, ... upholds an ordinance of the City of Akron prohibiting the sale of 3.2 beer within a municipality on Sunday. I would suggest after an examination of that case that you obtain a copy of the Akron ordinance from the Akron law department."

In the face of the ruling of Attorney General Schnur the Circleville councilmen, in the event they so choose, have the power to amend the existing ordinance so as to forbid Sunday sales of 3.2 beer.

Will Present Ruling

Solicitor Gerhardt said that he will present the ruling to the city council Tuesday night.

As originally drafted by Solicitor Gerhardt the regulatory ordinance stipulated that "whoever sells, furnishes, or gives away non-intoxicating beer, intoxicating beer, wine, liquor, ... between 12:01 a. m. Sunday and 12 midnight Sunday, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than $25 or more than $100."

Because of the council members' fear that the complete ban would prove illegal, Solicitor Gerhardt explained, that stipulation was deleted before the legislation was passed.

"When council asked me to take out the part about 'non-intoxicating' beer," Solicitor Gerhardt asserted, "they did not know that it was legally possible to include the Sunday beer-selling prohibition, but the communication from Assistant Attorney General Schnur says that it is possible and legal."

Explains Position

"As the ordinance now stands," Solicitor Gerhardt continued, "places selling 3.2 beer only are not affected, but if such places also sell liquors they must put away or cover the liquor on Sundays. The purpose of the closing ordinance is of course to regulate the business of liquor dealers and not to deny individuals the privileges of mild entertainment. As now written, the ordinance applies to lodges and service clubs as well as other establishments.

"I will present the letter from the attorney general's office to the city council," the solicitor said, "and then it will be up to the council members as to what action they desire to take."

As now written the regulatory ordinance compels the closing of liquor establishments that do not possess night club licenses at 1 a. m. weekdays and at midnight on Saturdays, whereas holders of night club permits must close at 2:30 a. m. weekdays and at midnight Saturdays.

Marshall's Opinion

Questioned on the possible change in the ordinance, Mert Marshall, manager of the White Swan, declared:

"I won't fight it. Let them go ahead. But it is my idea that if the Sunday closing is ordered, what are you going to do in the Summer when people will travel the pikes and get killed or injured trying to find beer?"

"It is no use closing in Circleville," Marshall continued, "if people will go up the pike for beer."

Marshall was the only citizen to voice a public opinion when the ordinance was originally enacted by council.

Other matters scheduled to come before Tuesday night's council session include issuance of mortgage revenue bonds to pay for the waterworks, and an ordinance providing for an extension to the Spring Hollow addition.

SUIT ASKS CANCELLATION OF MORTGAGE DATED 1910

Suit to cancel a 35-year-old real estate mortgage was filed Monday in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court by Ray W. Davis as administrator of the estate of Josephine Clark.

Defendants named in the petition are Augustus Jeffries, Elizabeth B. Feller, and the unknown heirs of E. J. Jeffries.

Davis says that a mortgage in the sum of $450 covering real estate in Circleville was dated August 3, 1910 and was paid in September, 1910, but was never cancelled.
